Council Meeting

The regular bi-monthly meeting of the Blairmore town council was held on Monday night last, the mayor and councillors Farmer, Dutil, Sinclair, Sparks and McLeod being present.

The meeting opened at 8 o'clock sharp with the reading of the minutes of previous meeting, which were adopted.

The report of the light committee revealed the fact of the failure of a number of fuses to cope with the occasion and the far too general total disappearance of light for some time past. Some suggestions were made to the effect that an amendment be recommended to the More Daylight Bill, which has occupied so much of the time of eastern and southern labor promoters for the past few years and which could very well be applied to the town of Blairmore at the present time. The report was forthwith ordered verified, and the necessary deductions made from the current light account.

A communication from the department of municipal affairs, Edmonton, was read. This requested the names of the mayor and standing councillors and other information regarding the municipality. This information had already been forwarded by the secretary-treasurer, a copy of which reply was also read and acknowledged favorable.

The Pacific Coast Pipe Co., Vancouver, wrote in regard to a car of pipe ordered, when to ship it. This was received and secretary to reply.

Another communication from the department of municipal affairs, asking as to whether the office of councillor Chestnut had been declared vacant since his failure to put in an appearance at a regular meeting for over three months, and the council were asked to refer to Section 17 of the Towns Act, which provides that such a declaration must be made and a successor appointed.

Sinclair-Dutil—That the office of councillor Chestnut be declared vacant. Carried.

A Chicago firm wanted information as to the terms of sale of town's debentures. This information was ordered sent.

The municipality of Taber asked for information regarding the lighting of the town, and secretary was instructed to inform that there was no franchise in connection with the present system.

A letter stating that the Board of Railway Commissioners would meet at Nelson, B. C., on December 9th, when the application of the town of Blairmore for a crossing at Eighth Avenue would be considered, was read. The council desired that matter be laid over till a later meeting to convene at Lethbridge, where the council's delegation would find more convenient to attend, and the secretary was instructed to ask such favor of the commissioners.

Several other less important letters were read and received.

Bright Prospects

W. J. Budd, vice president, and A. E. Stillman, secretary-treasurer, of the Keystone Portland Cement Company, were in town on Wednesday, on business in connection with the proposed plant.

Mr. Stillman was busy during the day taking photographs of the site and the adjacent country, and expresses his belief of the proposition of the Keystone Cement Company between Blairmore and Frank becoming the greatest manufacturing plant in Western Canada.

Conditions are such as to warrant the company enlarging considerably on their original plans and proposition, so that if their present hopes are realized this section of the Crows' Nest Pass will be able to boast of the largest and most modern cement plant in all Canada.

In connection with the finalizing of matters, Mr. Stillman, who is looking after the financial end of the business, leaves for New York next week.

It is only a matter of a few days now when the work of excavation for construction will begin and a large number of men employed.

Reduction in Cement Prices

When on June 12th, the duty on cement was cut in half, many people expected that cement would be cheaper, but such was not the case, as no change was made in cement prices.

On November 1st, when the duty was restored some people thought cement prices would be advanced, but the cement consumers knew that any advance in price would be against the policy of the largest Canadian cement producer, and did not expect any change. Few, if any, however, expected that with the duty restored, the price of cement in Alberta would be reduced by 25 cents per barrel. This, however, is the case, as on November 5th the Canada Cement Company Limited, issued a circular letter to their customers, advising them that in the Province of Alberta the above reduction would take place.

other exercises, the members and their guests took part in a merry feast, which was but a trifling compared with the right rousing time that followed. All the accumulation of wit and humor were given vent and, needless to say, nothing of a dry nature accompanied the many old-time and original stories that were related. The trick of "bull-dogging a steer" was ably performed by Messrs. Tully and Gales, while Rev. J. Hunter very efficiently "rushed the can." Songs formed an important part in the program. The gathering dispersed at 3:30 a.m. Wednesday.

At a supper-party a certain young man was sitting next to the Scottish Duchess and tried to gain admittance graced a knowledge of the Scottish tongue, declaring there was not a Scottish phrase he did not understand.

Little and Big Religion

This story comes from Australia, where all conversation turns eventually to matters ecclesiastical, because every parent and teacher knows that his son shall pass the standard which will free him from certain years of military service. A visitor was once asked what he thought about God, and opened a matter of God, with the words: Do you go to school now? Yes.

What do you learn? Reading, writing, sums?

Oh yes, and I learn religion, too. Religion?

Yes, I learn the little religion which we all share.

That we all come from Adam.

But my elder brother is in a higher class; he learns the big religion which teaches that we all come from monkeys.

All fathers can put away anxiety regarding their suffering children when they have Mother Gravas' Worm Exterminator to give relief. His effects are sure and lasting.

Put in Human Interest

An old negro-preacher says—the Atlanta Constitution, gave as his text—De tree know by its fruit, an' it's just impossible to shake its possum down.

After the benediction an old brother said to him:

The preachers bowed before dat such a text word in de Bible.

Well, admitted the preacher, it ain't down dat way I throwed in de possum to hit de intelligence of my congregation.

A Bargain Offer

Complain this way—asked the justice of the peace after he had fined Jimper five dollars.

I'm afraid I'll have to, said Jimper reluctantly.

Wa'd say the justice, stroking his chin, whether reflectin' on his daughter tell ye that we sell a return fine ticket for seventy dollars, on tellin' ye to immunity from arrest on the way back.

KEEP CHILDREN WELL DURING HOT WEATHER

Every mother knows how fast the children grow, and how small they are. Cholera infantum, diarrhoea, dysentery and stomach troubles are rife at this time and often a precious life is lost in a few hours of illness.

The mother who keeps Baby's Own Tablets in the house feels the occasional use of the tablets relieves abdominal and bowel trouble, or if the trouble continues—as it generally does—the Tablets will bring the baby safely through.

The Tablets are made by medicine dealers by mail, 25c a box from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brooklyn, Ont.

A fortune is said to be awaiting the man who discovers a way of curing the man after the ring is removed. The leather, it seems, is badly wanted for leather, and about $3,000,000 worth of leather is being wanted every year in Great Britain and Ireland alone.

Uncontrollable

Your daughter has a much temper.

I am not sure what you call it. All I know is that her mother and I can't do anything with her.

The change of diet that comes with spring and summer is often the cause of a number of attacks of inflammation, resulting in dysentery and cholera morbus.

The abnormal condition will continue if not attended to, and will cause an enormous amount of trouble.

The best available medicine is Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Dyer Cordial. It clears the stomach and bowels of irritants, counteracts the inflammation and restores the organs to healthy action.

Dangerous Talk

Mother, I wish you wouldn't mention dishwashing when George comes.

Why not, indeed?

I don't like it. It sounds common.

Common, eh? We have to eat, don't we?

Of course.

And George also knows that dishes have to be washed, therefore some time must be given to them?

But mother...

What now?

You keep on talking about George and discover that you make father wipe them, and he may think the same thing is coming to him if he should propose to mother.

What now?

George discovered that you make father wipe them, and he may think the same thing is coming to him if he should propose to mother.

Novel Experiment

An experiment never before made was to be made at Weymouth, where a seven-year-old boy had been raised with the object of raising $5,000 wherewith to build and equip an up-to-date institute for the benefit of men and women of the town.

A committee of 100 business men has been divided into teams of 10, each with a leader, and these will care for the boy—whose name is on a prepared list.

At the close of each day's collection the team will meet and report results and a huge clock erected outside the central rooms will record the progress of the campaign.

Mr. Gladstone's Gift

Mr. W. G. C. Gladstone, M.P., of Liverpool, England, and the Lord of the Manor, Hawarden Castle has just formally opened a public reading room at Hawarden.

The ground, which is a little over two acres in extent, commands a lovely view of the Cheshire plains.

There was a large crowd of villagers present, and a procession of schoolchildren, carrying flags and friendly society officials wearing caps.

They Quarreled

Townsend Simpson Jr., was talking about a remarkable incident he gave out last month in California.

Of course, he said, that interview misinterpreted my real views. I am not a communist, nor do I believe in communism.

The interview resembled Mrs. Smith's case.

I made a big batch of these biscuits today.

Indeed you did, dear, her husband answered gravely.

Why do you know how big a batch I made? she cried in surprise.

I thought you were a lady, said Mr. Smith.

The Champlain Diary

At Dieppe in France, there is in the possession of a M. Feret one of the most valuable books in the world, the old-fashioned handwriting of bygone ages, illustrated by little sketches, such as would be no credit to the untutored lad of ten years of age, and contains a hundred and fifteen small pages. It is a journal of Samuel de Champlain, written about 1585.

Such a treasure is beyond price but I cannot help wondering that the Canadian Government could in some fair manner become possessed of this diary, written by the first fatigued of Canada. It is not much of importance to Canada itself in this particular book, which contains a narrative of Champlain's first voyage to the St. Lawrence River, he sailed by fifteen hundred leagues.

It must be allowed to be a remarkable thing that Champlain should have suggested such a thing as the tree-line route to the interior of America fifteen years before it was accomplished. Men of great deeds often are men of great vision, and Champlain was one of the greatest men in the history of the world.

In July and August, 1615, he was with a good deal of weariness of soul working out with his own feet and his hands the route of the great canal, which I expect to live to see completed.

It was probably the tales of copious rainfall that directed him to the lakes which caused Champlain to make the choice he did between the offers of the Montagnais to guide him to Lake Huron, and the services of the Hurons to the interior of the Great Lakes.

He believed evidently in the way home to France was by Lake Huron, and he was extremely anxious to visit the interior of the Great Lakes.

His dreams are coming true at last. The Hudson Bay Railway is actually under construction and the Canadian Pacific and the Georgian Bay Canal is badly needed, and therefore will be built. Who can say that there is not a place for Champlain's dream and his great vision, as well as for the practical man of action.

It is little short of a miracle that the two qualities were combined in Samuel de Champlain.

But notice Champlain's theory, though it was long in coming to fruition, was greater than his practice, and had to do with making the canal.

Canada will have in full chance to achieve its true greatness, when Champlain's dream, or rather his theories, have been worked out practically by other means, advantages, the Hudson Bay Railway, the Panama Canal route, and the Georgian Bay Canal.

Facts About Penny Postage

England is the first country to introduce penny postage for domestic letters.

Sir Rowland Hill was the author of the penny-post system, which spread to other countries, and was also the author of the money order system and post-office savings banks.

Before that time postage rates in England had varied with the distance, except that in 1839 a trial had been made of a uniform rate of one cent per letter.

Stamped covers were introduced in 1840, and half-penny postal cards were issued in 1870. Street letter boxes were first used in England in 1855.

In the United States the post office department was much slower in attaining a uniform penny or two-cent rate.

Before 1855 the postage rate on letters was from five to ten cents, according to distance, and it was not until 1855 that the rate was reduced to three cents for distances of over 2,000 miles.

A uniform three-cent rate was adopted in 1863, and a two-cent rate in 1875.

One of the first steps toward international money order was taken when the United States entered into agreements with Canada and Mexico, whereby the two countries were able to apply to the same currency.

Other countries followed suit, and by 1890 the United States, Canada, Mexico, Japan, China, Austria, France, Germany, Great Britain, Sweden and other foreign countries had joined in.

In the Smart Little Trap

The One Who Didn't Land Its Owner and the One Who Did.

By VIRGINIA LEILA WENTZ.

"And he has the smartest-looking trap you ever saw, Madge! It's chamois colored and a perfect love. What do you bet I don't land him, trap all, before the summer's down by?"

Miss Irene Warden, a beauty and aware of 10, was writing to her girl club concerning the bachelor who had just taken the big colonial house with the carriage road and iron archway which she had been admiring now had abandoned hope of usefulness.

She was writing by an open window where the scent of the roses came up from the front garden. Beyond lay the pretty tree-lined road over which the bachelor and his champagne-clored traps had just flown.

"Although I've told you his name is Horace Matlock," ran on Miss Warden's pen, "I haven't told you what he looks like. He's an old man, forty or fifty, I should say. His nose is rather too big, although people call him handsome, and most men who live in big houses and drive smart traps have big noses, what?" Miss Warden smiled a little soft smile to glaze above her dressing-table and then bent over her portfolio again.

"Of course I'd prefer dear old Tom. After singing and stunning and singing elegies so beautifully, as you know, he hasn't a red cent. And I really must do something this summer, Madge. My already meager allowance will be cut considerably by the autumn, in September, as far as going to the matrimonial game himself—hard, designing widow too! So I must 'step lively' in the practice of street car officials."

A point of fact, though, pursued plain sailing. I haven't a single pretty-looking rascal up in this out-of-the-way place except old Professor Thornton's daughter, and she's the quietest type of a girl—a regular stay at home. And as for dressing—well, Madge, you and I spend as much on our gloves and hats as we do on our dresses and our whole outfit. That's what comes from having a bookworm for a father."

The next week a friend presented Mr. Horace Matlock to Miss Irene Warden. Apparently the meeting was by accident, but it was evident that the amiable, chaste, and less habitual composure was rippled for a second, while, for his part, Mr. Matlock seemed to look at her and, having passed a considerate smile, to nod. "Well, you're right, politeness walked out to his smart little trap."

"I had on my cile viol, the one Aunt Tessie sent me from Paris, you know," wrote Miss Warden to Madge, "and my big white hat with stopping and starting, and I was so nervous I couldn't understand it. Her dreams hadn't guided that way at all."

One day in the tiny little bank Horace Matlock stopped short as he recognized a stooped, gaunt figure with a patrician face.

"What's this?" he cried, stepping up to him with a cordially outstretched hand.

"I had on my cile viol, the one Aunt Tessie sent me from Paris, you know," wrote Miss Warden to Madge, "and my big white hat with stopping and starting, and I was so nervous I couldn't understand it. Her dreams hadn't guided that way at all."

When Matlock years ago had entered Yale as a freshman Thornton had been tutoring, and quite a friendship had sprung up between them. Thornton's son had lost faith in such other—but the satisfaction of the younger man in meeting the older one again was genuine.

"Poor old professor! How thin and worn and aged he's become!" thought Matlock, as he drove his professor to his modest little cottage.

Out in the cottages' side yard at the hollyhocks a girl was picking a great bunch of sweet peas for the lunch-table. When she heard the smart little trap stop at the gate she looked quickly up from the blossoms and said, "What's this?"—the Boston-dressed looking stranger? And where had he picked up this dandy?

A few days later Matlock drove up to the cottage again. It was only decent he told himself that he should now be given some attention—and taking him driving now and then. Perhaps some day also he would take the professor's daughter. He liked her.

He liked her natural, unashamed way in which she had acknowledged her father's presence, and his own full of sweet peas; he liked the width between her eyes, the breadth of her brow, the lines of her mouth. She was less pretty than many young girls, but there was about her a freshness, a sweetness, a frankness, a frankness that deceived that her figure in her simple blue gown was well modelled and slim.

One evening toward twilight, when in the open lawn bats were whirling aimlessly and tirelessly, Matlock drove up in the professor's trap and found a little girl sitting and fanning him his afternoon mat as prefect. While they were sitting off on the porch from the shadowy little parlor came the first chords of Beethoven's beautiful "Moonlight Sonata."

"That's Cynthia," said Professor Thornton in answer to his wife's start of surprise. "She's never too tired, no matter how hard or long the day has been, to play that sonata for me in the evening. I love it above all other written music, and she never forgets."

Then while the three toads droned their harmonies he told Matlock a little about his daughter—how four years ago he had suffered a paralytic stroke, and had been obliged to leave school. "She has been a year since he turned his sight and day with untiring sweetness; how, when their slender income was exhausted a year back, she had begun to make use of her musical skill and give lessons on the piano. And when the professor told of Cynthia's trinkets, he admitted how hard it had been on his poor self, and in the gloaming behind the honeysuckles the two men were silent.

Presently they smoked their usual cigars and the professor read a newspaper—newspaper topics discussed by individual opinion, a good deal of politics, a little of art and science. Last of all, Cynthia came out.

"Delighted!" she said, going prettily up to Matlock with outstretched hands. "With you two have been getting better health, remembering, walking, for you and have drawn you a cup. Will you come in, or shall we have it out here?"

They went in. Near the little fire screened fireplace was a tea table, decorated with a vase of pink and thin chintz. The hanging lamp shed the rich, soft glow of olive oil, and there was an air of intimate homeliness about everything. Matlock had been a stranger to that sort of thing for so long that it was a kind of thrill to him to find it again. Cynthia had a coy tea table and a slim white hand to inclose in yours—Cynthia's hands were slim and white enough as they moved along the chin in the half light. He pulled a chair close to the professor and then sat down himself.

Before Horace Matlock went to bed that night he remembered that on the morrow Cynthia Thornton was to drive with him in his champagne-colored trap. How it would harmonize with her coat and hat! The sun had touched it to gold! What a dear, womanly little treasure of girlish brightness she was anyhow!

Cynthia only returned from Adams the next day a half hour before her drive and was consequently late. She was not one to let her conversation stop, however, and she was very silent. Matlock as he handled the reins watched both her and the landscape. There was a certain peace about her which was not peace, was about her which was not peace, was about all things which she wanted.

The next day Miss Warden wrote to her girl chum again:

"In the beginning of the summer, Madge, dear, I wrote you that a certain matrimonial venture would be 'certainly' a success. Well, I'm afraid I shall never find port—not at least with my bachelors up on the hill. And in the wonder of wonders, who of all people do you suppose has taken the wind out of my sail?"—Cynthia Thornton.

The next week a friend presented Mr. Horace Matlock to Miss Irene Warden. Apparently the meeting was by accident, but it was evident that the amiable, chaste, and less habitual composure was rippled for a second, while, for his part, Mr. Matlock seemed to look at her and, having passed a considerate smile, to nod. "Well, you're right, politeness walked out to his smart little trap!"

At this point Miss Warden's pretty chestnut caught the top of her penholder, while she looked dreamily toward the sunny, tree-lined street. Then she began to hum.

At the point on the fourth bar of her song a shadowed colored trap submitted by. It was the charming bachelor, and by his side was Cynthia Thornton.

Animals Seen in the Sea.

Many land animals and birds have their titles taken from dwellers in the deep sea. Perhaps the most curious is the sea mouse, which does not resemble the land mouse in the slightest degree, but is the commonest of curious shapes and lives on land, and has the same mark. Often, however, it is thrown up on the beach by storms.

The sea otter, whose fur is remarkably valuable, resembles more its mate on land. It is, however, very rare, found only in the Pacific, and the coast of the northern Pacific.

Another funny inhabitant of the sea is the sea owl. It is not a bird at all, but a fowl. Its more common name is lump sucker. It curiously forms its mouth, by which it fastens itself to the rock, and resembles that of an owl, the name being derived from it.

Then the sea snake—not to be confused with the mythical sea serpent.

Many land animals come from England having been built at the works of Robert Stephenson & Co. in the year 1853, and made its first trip over the Bosphorus, Oldtown and Millford railroad on Aug. 19, 1857. This road was then generally known as the "Yankee road," and the engine was named "Yankee."

One evening toward twilight, when in the open lawn bats were whirling aimlessly and tirelessly, Matlock drove up in the professor's trap and found that his figure in his simple blue gown was well modelled and slim.

TREATMENT FOR CUTS ON HORSES.

When a horse gets a birth wire cut do not apply axle grease or any greasy substance, writes A. S. Alexander, M. D., in the "Journal of Veterinary Practice." Cut the wire and clean the wound. If necessary to remove hair and any foreign substance that may have lodged in the wound, it should be done, due to a fall, for instance, use clippers. Then wash the wound with absorbent cotton and not a sponge. A sponge becomes dirty and readily infects a wound. Each day use fresh absorbent cotton to do any cleansing necessary. In treating a wound, soak the dressings.

home-made stationery, depend upon it the management of that business has not got the welfare of the community or their customers at heart nor practices the
"live-and-let-live" idea.

The first Monday in December is set apart as nomination day for the municipality,

when the ratepayers of the town of Blairmore will be called upon to name their executors of municipal affairs for 1913.

Twelve months ago the town received her certificate of incorporation, when the first mayor and councillors were chosen to continue the work left down by the village officials and to handle the affairs of the town in accordance with the desire of the ratepayers.

Since that time much of the work has gone along smoothly, while many matters have called forth abrupt criticisms.

It is hoped that the next aldemanic body will work along in greater harmony and that their deliberations will be manifested in abundant good and that quarrels such as those witnessed during the past year will be lost to memory.

More Feathers for His Hat

J. Carroll, who about the first of August passed several bad cheques at the Burton Hotel, is now serving sentence in Lethbridge for being connected with a shooting affair at Til-bar, Alberta. Constable G. M. Gunn, yesterday sent a warrant for Carroll's arrest when released for the crime here. There are several charges against the man from other places.—Creston Review.

A. E. Gibson, of the W. J. Hederell Co., was in town this week adjusting the town books, and left for points further west on Wednesday.

Rev. James Lang, of Pasadena, officiated at the Presbyterian church on Sunday last. At night the reverend gentleman took up his subject "Work" and delivered a very able address.

A meeting of the directors of the Blairmore Brewery Co. was convened on Monday last, but was adjourned to Tuesday morning owing to the absence of some important members.

Mrs. F. M. Pinkney and her sister Mrs. F. M. Thompson, and children leave on Saturday for a six month's visit to their old home in Scotland. They will also visit friends in England before returning.

Who's to blame?
I'll tell 'em so!
If you don't have the rest,
Help yourself!
When there's nothing else to do
Let the fellows count on you;
You'll feel bulky when it's through,
Don't you know!

If the other fellow's it,

Change your name!
Spend your money—in the town,
Where you pull the cheeks down;
Give the mail concern a frown—
That's the game!

If you're not a jolly knocker,
Change your style,
Throw bouquets instead of rocks
For a while.

Let the other fellow roar,
Shun him as you would a ghost;
Meet his hammer with a boast
And a smile.

When a stranger from afar
Comes along

Tell him who and what we are—

Make it strong.

Needn't flatter, never bluff;

Tell the truth, for that's strong;

Tell the boosters; they're the stuff—

We belong.

been successful in passing examination and receiving mine

Don't forget the big boxing contest at the Blairmore opera house on Saturday night. This will be the finest exhibition of the pugilistic science ever put on in the Crows' Nest Pass, and keen interest is taken in the local product, Dominick Marshall.

The new Wonder theatre,
on the corner of Victoria Street and Seventh Avenue, is now putting on an up-to-date picture show at the nominal rate 5 and 15 cents. The manager states he well remembers when he was young and like the other boys enjoyed seeing everything, and therefore has decided to make the prices for the young folk within their reach and allow them the benefit of not only seeing the pictures but also getting the advantage of the many good lessons taught by them.—Adv.

Climatic Conditions

Ever Changing

Statements concerning the ever-changing climatic conditions, which he frankly admits, may be startling to the scientific world as well as to the layman, were made in an interview in Edmonton today by Dr. James Munro, M. E., of Winnipeg, who has given the subject the study of a life time. He said:

"From information gathered from many sources, both from Europe and America, I am led to believe there is a far-reaching cause which may count for the tremendous gains covering the whole of the north temperate zone, running across Canada, across the Atlantic ocean, covering England, Scotland and northern Europe and Asia. The continuous and universal rainfall this last summer extending over the portions of the earth named, following a year that was noted for its large rainfall, has caused me to endeavor to get at the basic principle or cause of this phenomena."

"Newton, by applying his theory of gravitation combined with so-called centrifugal force to the earth, and assuming that an oblate spheroid or rotation is a form of equilibrium for a homogeneous fluid rotation with uniform velocity, was one of the first to prove that interior of the earth was a molten mass, and that rotary motion of the earth combined with the attraction of the other planets, together with the sun, kept the earth suspended and whirling through space."

"Now, the radiation of the earth's heat is causing a condensation of the surface of the planet and this contraction at certain points tends to throw up the interior molten matter at points where the earth's shell is perhaps thinner. This has recently occurred in the northern Pacific ocean, where large new islands have been thrown up."

"Reports show that the Japan current has changed its course striking southern Canada and Alaska at a much higher latitude than formerly. The cold winds from this current flowing north easterly are melting the snows and ices of the Arctic, and the winds from the north are carrying the moisture-laden clouds south and east, and depositing their moisture in rain and snow."

"This has been a cool, cloudy summer, and we have wondered where all the rain came from, as the cloudy atmosphere did not permit the sun to draw its moisture from ordinary lake and rivers. Again it is my belief that the accumulated ice at the South Pole, couple with the throwing off of the large number of enormous icebergs at the North Pole, has caused the earth to slightly change its centre of gravity, thus throwing the Arctic zone farther south, causing the sun to evaporate its snows and ices to a greater extent at the north than ever before. Note the great number of icebergs that have been reported in the Atlantic ocean the last few years. The Yukon country and Iceland too are experiencing greater heat this year than ever recorded."

"Only the other day it was reported that a great glacier more than a mile in length had broken from the fringe of Alaska, which cuts the Yukon from the Pacific ocean. Nature is slowly unfolding her wondrous plan. With the melting of the northern snows and the warming of the waters of Hudson's Bay, she will give Canada access to new sources of wealth which for centuries lay latent and undeveloped."

The boy's appetite is often the source of amusement. If you would have such an appetite like Chamberlain's, you not only create a healthy appetite, but strengthen the stomach and enable it to do its work naturally. For sale by all dealers.

MEAN INSECT.

The Comprehensive Characterization of the German Farmer. An old German farmer in Kansas by industry and frugality acquired a rather large property and at the same time a ponderous physique. He sold his farm and stock and bought a nest place in the outskirts of the town. Not wishing to be overly busy, he cultivated a garden patch in which he took great pride.

One day an adventurous soul found its way into the garden through a hole in the fence. The old man ran him off with a stick, but Mr. Coal could not or would not find the hole through which he had entered. At last, out of temper and breath, the man sat down on a bench and, fanning himself with his hat, said:

"Dev'ryal is der-meastet insect vot schumps. Dot's vot der mäster iss."—Kansas City Star.

Generous Americans.

Jerry was treating Mike in a trolley ride. The conductor, a good looking young man, came through collecting the fares. Mike watched his progress with great interest. Presently he turned to Jerry with tears in his eyes.

"Jerry," he said huskily, "I've a hump in me front."

"What's that?" demanded Jerry.

"...that's what I meaned Jerry."

"Mike, what's that?" said Mike. "Every American has the big, generous heart. Dye mind the poor young feller wid the blue cap? 'Tis beginn' his livin' he is. I saw him hold out his hand to twenty-six people, an' every blessed wan o' them giv him a nickel."—Judge.

Neat Waves.

A young mother who still considers herself a virgin was at work on the job.

The precocious child was crushed on its father's lap, the baby fingers now and then sliding over the smooth and glossy pate which is father's.

"No waves for you, father," remarked the little one. "You're all beach."

"My wife has begun to practice rigid economy."

"I suppose you are not making any sexual objections?"

"No, we informed me last night that she had decided instead of paying $15 for a concert to get a far dollar one, although she realized that it would be more stiff and uncomfortable than the other kind."

Terrible Itching Got Little Sleep

Mr. T.
Williams,
Winnipeg.

Until Cuticura Remedies Cured Him

Those who have suffered long and bitterly from tonic skin diseases will wish to receive this letter from Mr. T. Williams, 115 Pacific Ave., Winnipeg (dated Jan. 14, 1908). "I am a man of 50 years of age, and did work hard, and I am thankful that there is such a remedy, and that I tried it. About the time I received your remedies, I had commenced on my body. I could not understand it. It gradually grew worse, and covered a large portion of my body, and caused a slight eruption of the skin, sort of a rash. I suffered greatly with the itching and at times I could hardly sleep. I tried two remedies which did no good, and then I tried Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Remedy. In about four days I was completely cured."

For more than a generation the Cuticura Remedies have been the most economical treatment for itching, burning, scaly and blemished skin and scalp diseases. They are sold in every drug store and dealers everywhere. For a liberal sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment, with 22-p. on remittance, send a postcard to the Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Dept. 20, Colman St., Boston, Mass.

COPPERPLATE ENGRAVING.

The Art We Discovered Through the Most Accidents.

Every one has noticed on his writing card the extremely delicate lines of his name, and almost every one knows that they are produced by printing from an engraved copperplate. Like many other things of use and beauty, art of copperplate engraving was discovered through the most accident by the goldsmiths of Florence in the fifteenth century.

It is a historical fact, however, that one day an engraver on gold, wishing to take a proof of his work, made the usual sulphur cast and then filled up the hole with wax, and when he was about to melt it, he saw exactly how his work looked. While occupied in doing this it occurred to him that possibly the same results could be obtained by filling up the original engraving with lampblack instead of making an impression of it and filling up that.

He did this, and succeeded in getting a fair impression from the engraving.

The discovery was communicated to other workers in the art, and they halited it with joy, as it saved all the arduous trouble of making sulphur casts.

It is a well-known fact that the full value of the discovery, and consequently the art of plate engraving lay for almost a century before its true import was discovered and brought out in all greater and beautiful results.

In today's great plate engravers rare is the case of a master of earlier times and search the world for examples of these early masters to add to their collections. Many of these collections have been presented to museums, where they may be seen and appreciated by the people.

AIDED THE AERONAUT.

Washington Was the Godfather of Aviation.

Apparently George Washington was not only the Father of His Country, but also something like the godfather of aviation in America. At any rate he wrote a letter for one M. Blanchard, who made the first balloon ascension in this country at Philadelphia in 1793. The letter is reproduced in St. Nicholas reader.

"George Washington, president of the United States of America. To all whom these presents shall come.

"The bearer hereof, Mr. Blanchard, a citizen of France, proposed to ascend in a balloon from the city of Philadelphia, at 10 o'clock a.m. this day, to pass in such direction and to descend in such place as circumstances may render most convenient."

"These are, therefore, to recommend to all citizens of the United States, that in order that his health and descent, return or journeying elsewhere they oppose no hindrance or molestation to the said Mr. Blanchard, and that, on the contrary, they receive and bid him with that humanity and good will which becomes a nation that is a model to the world, and to an individual so distinguished by his efforts to establish and advance an art, in order to make it useful to mankind in general."

"Given under my hand and seal at the city of Philadelphia, this day of January in the year of our Lord一千九百零八年, and of the independence of America the seventeenth.

"GEORGE WASHINGTON."

A Japanese Idea.

The late Mutsumi, emperor of Japan, died in 1907, shortly before his death took a painful journey in the northern part of Japan and arrived at his destination half an hour late on account of a slight accident on the road.

Next day the manager of the road company, who had been waiting for him for his arrival, found that his bad management had inconvenienced the emperor. This caused a great deal of attention, and some of the leading men of Japan, commenting on the dead man, attacked his point of view.

They said that the emperor, in his desire to erect a statue in his honor as an ideal exponent of the Japanese conception of loyalty,

A Funny Siamese Custom.

They have a very funny custom in Siam, where a man who has been in the presence of a superior he throws himself upon the ground. Then the superior sends one of his attendants forward to see whether the prostrate man has been eating anything or has any offensive odor about him. If he is blameless in this respect, the attendant raises him from the ground, but if he is guilty the attendant straightway kicks him out.

Never Asked a Fee

A granite shaft erected by popular subscription in memory of the grave of Dr. Joseph Dawson, a physician who never asked a fee.

Dawson was buried in the little cemetery in the woods a year ago, and his grave always has been unmarked. Nobody knew just when Dawson came. He arrived with one friend, a coal miner, and the two of them had a wide practice. Those who wished to pay for his services could do so, but he never insisted on a fee. What the miners did pay use for the actual necessities of the poor, and were given to the church to charity.

It is a historical fact, however, that one day an engraver on gold, wishing to take a proof of his work, made the usual sulphur cast and then filled up the hole with wax, and when he was about to melt it, he saw exactly how his work looked.

While occupied in doing this it occurred to him that possibly the same results could be obtained by filling up the original engraving with lampblack instead of making an impression of it and filling up that.

A Damon Bowler.

For many years Brown and Baggs had been bricketers, and such thought him a better boxer than his friend at the time when he was a boy.

At last Brown challenged Baggs to a single-wicket match, and the wager was accepted.

Brown batted first, and made nine.

Their game took place in a basement.

When Baggs returned from tea he found the stumps drawn, and the friend who had been watching the game as umpire, shouting for him to stand up.

"I've won," he said.

"What do you mean?" I haven't said Baggs.

"You have repeated the umpire. Brown bowed thirty winks. You've won."

"I've been to see the doctor," he said.

"What are you doing?"

"Nothing," replied McFee. "Why?"

"Well what's the crowd following you for?"

A Pill That Is Prized.—There have been many pills put upon the market and people usually pay attention to those which have a good name, but few are so much as Palmrose's Vegetable Pills. Widespread use of them has attested their great value, and they are now used in every part of the country.

They are made of vegetable materials, and are easily digested, and are a valuable aid in the cure of many diseases.

Having firmly established themselves in public esteem they now rank without a peer in the list of standard vegetable preparations.
